USPS Announces Temporary Rate Adjustments for 2021 Peak Holiday Season

The U.S. Postal Service has been approved by the Postal Regulatory Commission (PRC) to implement a temporary price adjustment for key package products for the 2021 peak holiday season. This temporary rate adjustment is like one in 2020 that anticipated heightened peak-season package and shipping demand, which typically results in extra handling.

The planned peak-season pricing, which was approved by the Governors of the Postal Service on Aug. 5, would affect prices on commercial and retail domestic competitive parcels – Priority Mail Express (PME), Priority Mail (PM), First-Class Package Service (FCPS), Parcel Select, USPS Retail Ground, and Parcel Return Service. International products would be unaffected. The temporary rates were effective at 12:00 a.m., Central Time, on Oct. 3, 2021, and remain in place until 12:00 a.m., Central Time, Dec. 26, 2021.

A full list of commercial and retail pricing can be found on the Postal Service’s Postal Explorer website <https://pe.usps.com/text/dmm300/Notice123.htm>
